

Call for participation in CIVIS Nano talks

First webinar series February-June 2024

Are you a PhD student or postdoc in Nanoscience and Nanotechnology, and would like to showcase your breaking research news, talk about your motivations and your daily life? Join the “CIVIS Nano talks” project of joint webinars for master students, PhDs and doctors of our universities!

The manifold objective of this webinar series is to develop new collaborations between members of CIVIS alliance, to give you the opportunity to present differently your job, and to inspire others to do research.

Participating universities:

Eberhard Karls Universität Tübingen (Germany)

Aix-Marseille Université (France)

Sapienza Università di Roma (Italia)

University of Bucharest (Romania)

University of Glasgow (UK)

Proposed webinar format

Each 90-minute session is divided into two webinars given by two PhD students from two Alliance universities. Each webinar lasts 45 minutes, including a 30-minute presentation and a 15-minute discussion with the audience. This presentation lies somewhere between a popularization exercise, an oral conference and a sharing of experience.

The presentation could include:

- an introduction to the scientific material needed to understand your research topic
- the general context of your research
- the main results you have obtained, highlighting the obstacles and breakthroughs you have encountered
- the perspectives of your research in other directions or fields, and finally
- a more general discussion about your profession as a researcher, your expertise, and the way you see the role of researchers in society.
